

Navigating a cyber-attack

An interactive discussion and simulated case study for senior lawyers and executives

With cyber-attacks against global corporations increasing in severity and complexity, and with new regulations coming online in Europe and around the world, it is becoming increasingly important that senior management, and those who advise them, understand the security, regulatory and legal risks across jurisdictions. It is also critical that they know what to do about them.

Please join us for an engaging, interactive event designed to bring out what needs to be done and when, and to discuss best practices in Switzerland and internationally.

For this session:

Eversheds Sutherland's Swiss and US lawyers will facilitate the interactive discussion based on a simulated cyber-attack against a multinational corporation with presence in the Switzerland. Participants will discuss the crisis and formulate a response, with guidance from Eversheds Sutherland lawyers who have unique experience in this area, both in government and in the private sector.

The panel will be lead and moderated by our US Partner Michael Bahar, Co-Lead of the global Cybersecurity and Data Privacy practice and former White House official under President Obama, together with Monika McQuillen, Head of Cyber Crime in Switzerland and Dr. Michel Verde, Senior Associate.

They will seek to address in-depth cybersecurity and data privacy aspects, such as:

- Advance planning
- Crisis management
- Cyber insurance
- Breach litigation
- And potential criminal proceedings

Michael Bahar currently counsels multinational corporations on cybersecurity and data privacy, and he is former Deputy Legal Advisor to the National Security Council at the White House, former Staff Director and General Counsel to the U.S. House of Representatives intelligence oversight committee, and former Active Duty Navy officer, with service at the Pentagon and overseas.

Monika McQuillen is a specialist in the field of individual and collective employment and data protection law and commercial dispute resolution. She regularly works in a cross border environment. It is her strength to offer strategic and hands on advice, and she has a track record in assisting clients to resolve difficult situations.

Dr. Michel Verde's main areas of practice are data privacy, employment law, torts, criminal law and litigation. He received the Prof. Walther Hug Prize and Prix d'Excellence of the Swiss society for tort and insurance law.

Who should attend?

Senior executives and lawyers who have a stake in the management of an enterprise-wide cyber-attack should plan to attend. Those who lead internal investigations will also benefit from this session.
