We are delighted to invite you to our annual Diversified Industrials Conference where we will be bringing together a whole host of leading experts in this field, to present and participate on topical issues and key challenges facing the industry.

We are pleased to announce our keynote speaker will be James Landale from the BBC. James is an award-winning journalist, broadcaster and author who has reported on British politics for more than two decades, covering five general elections and interviewing every prime minister since John Major. He is currently the BBC's Diplomatic Correspondent and he has also presented a variety of programmes on television and radio including the Andrew Marr Show, The Daily Politics and The World at One and Westminster Hour. James will provide us with strong insight into the economic challenges and impacts facing industrial companies post Brexit and the new Trump Administration.

In addition to this we will be hosting a topical panel session on the subject of 'Global Industrial Strategy'. Panellists include Lord John Hutton and Gavin Lambert from the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy, who will provide us with an insight into a number of issues and developments regarding Brexit, the UK governments proposed industrial strategy and the impact this is likely to have on industrial businesses, globally.

We will also be holding a number of other panel sessions on the topic of new technology and digital developments, corporate investigations and M&A. We will also hold presentations on supplier risk management and export controls and sanctions.

The conference will be fully interactive, allowing delegates to raise any questions, challenges, and share experiences with peers and network with like-minded people.

We very much look forward to seeing you then.
