Navigating global data transfers and Schrems II

The increasingly complex and evolving myriad of laws regulating the transfer of personal data around the globe can pose a threat to innovation and business efficiency if not addressed properly.

And yet, compliance with these changes, altering and repapering contractual arrangements, implementing new technical and organizational measures and mitigating associated risks is a significant task requiring additional resources in an already very busy area. We have carefully considered the latest regulatory developments as well as what we can see on the horizon, with a view to helping you navigate and keep pace with this ever-changing legal landscape in a way that best suits your needs.

The result is a comprehensive range of services – modular and completely customisable to your organization’s requirements, risk appetite and commercial objectives. So whether you require long term end-to-end support, a shorter term immediate response, or both, we offer a broad range of solutions to facilitate compliant global data transfers and enable you to respond to regulator requests and investigations in a full and timely manner.

Your challenge

Establish the data transfers that your organization is making internally and across customer and supplier accounts

Carry out Transfer Impact Assessments (TIA) for certain groups of customers, suppliers and employees

Agree additional measures for some of your data transfers, including contractual, technical and organizational

Amend the agreements that underpin your data transfer arrangements

How we can help

Gather this data by reaching out to the relevant parties using questionnaires and technology to track responses

Design the TIA(s) to ensure you are capturing the right level of information and help you, complete them using guidelines, playbooks and scoring mechanisms

Advise on what the additional measures might look like and, if contractual, can draft supplementary clauses for insertion into agreements

Amend your existing agreements using template SSCs, issue them to suppliers and customers, manage any negotiation within agreed parameters, and get the agreements signed and executed

KONEXO

Operational steps for compliance

Developed by Eversheds Sutherland, Konexo provides consulting and alternative legal services. Our Konexo team can provide technology, program management and interim resource to support your Schrems II repapering needs.

How we are helping clients ...

A major vendor - technology provider

With our client defining and executing the outreach, we have set up a team to monitor and address all incoming responses following the outreach and where required. Our Konexo team is managing the process of agreeing amendments using a playbook and templates provided by the client. We manage all escalations within the playbook and exceptions outside of the playbook, within defined levels of complexity. Any totally bespoke negotiation is passed over to the client's in-house team. The Konexo team is project managed by our experienced staff, with regular performance reporting provided to our client.

A global universal bank

Our client's needs are extensive due to their operations across multiple jurisdictions worldwide, and working closely with the bank's own program management and legal teams we are supporting on automating and scaling all of their documentation in preparation for the repapering activity. Our Konexo team facilitated the first stage of the process by outreaching to a large volume of suppliers with a custom-built questionnaire, and managing responses and chasers to relieve the admin burden from the bank's in-house legal team. In the second stage, Konexo has taken data reviewed by the bank to generate the SCCs variation, with a short playbook so that these can be negotiated by Konexo with minimal escalations to the bank's legal team. We have achieved a high level of systemization and automation for our client by investing in the upfront set-up of the process to drive efficiency and scalability.
