

Helping you manage UK immigration Right-to-work in 2021

New course series modules

The end of free movement for EEA and Swiss citizens will require substantial changes to immigration compliance processes in the UK over the next few months.

A large number of such new hires will, for the first time, be required to demonstrate they hold permission to work in the UK. Some existing employees may lose the right to work in the UK by failing to register for settled or pre-settled status. The move towards an electronic system of issuing permission to work will mean that use of UK Visas and Immigration's online checking system will become essential from July 2021. These challenges arise in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic and the modified checks introduced in March 2020.

This course is led over two mornings by experts from our UK immigration team and is the second in a series of modular immigration training courses which we will offer throughout 2021. With use of law, policy guidance and insights from practice, we will help you get up-to-speed with the new requirements and advise about how to manage UK immigration effectively.

Delegates will be provided a detailed set of course materials.

Delegates will gain an insight into:

- strategic and practical issues that HR professionals need to consider when reviewing immigration processes and creating a system which is compliant with the new requirements; as well as considerations on how this system should operate
- making a manual and online right to work check and using the Employer Checking Service
- managing leave to remain expiry
- how to object to civil penalties
- student workers
- managing informal contact from the Immigration Enforcement
- practical worked examples of managing problems

Delegates will also benefit from a strategy workshop incorporated into each module session.

Who should attend?

This course is aimed at those within organisations who have responsibility for immigration issues. It is suitable for HR, global mobility and legal professionals who oversee this, operate or implement right-to-work checking processes.

The modules do not presume prior knowledge of immigration law.
